that it was impossible to sign the scale. One gentleman admitted that there would be a lock-out, "but not for a long while." he added, leaving the listener in doubt as to whether this brevity of lockout arise from a "cave" on the part of reperal signing of the scale now offered by the Amalgamated Association.

"You'ree," aid an iron man not interested on either side, "this Association of

No where else has it the force and somaller places it loses its strength. As a consequence, Pittsburgh is the sufferer, and will be undersold everywhere. The Amelgameted Association is strong, and Amalgamated Association is strong, and the members know it."

An intelligent heater delivered himself as follows regarding some apparently weak spots in the new scale:

"It is not a fair arrangement at all," said a heater this morning, speaking of the boilers' scale, "and if it should ever be adopted, it would only lead to further trouble."

said a heater this morning, speaking of the boiler's scale, 'mand if it should ever be adopted, it would only lead to further trouble."

"How's that?" asked the Telegraph representative.

"Why, it raises the wages of one class above another. Here's the muck roller, for instance. If the new scale were in fire he would get 63% cents per ton, while the bar roller, who works by a separate scale, would be getting only 65 cents. The same is true of the guide and hoop rollers, all of these being more skilled than muck rollers. Then, again, the scrappers on cinder bottom, who work by the boilers' scale, would get a 10 per centraise, while the scrappers on eand bottom, whose work is just as hard and requires just as much skill, would get no raise at all. Or take the nail plate rollers. They are a much higher class than the muck rollers, yet their pay by the new scale would be 18 cents per too less. And it is that way all over the mill. If the boilers get their raise now it will create great disastisfaction with all the other classes whose wages are not raised in proportion, and for my part I don't want to zee a lockout. If there is to be any raise at all, it ought to a facet all classes at once at all, it ought to a facet all classes at once at all, it ought to affect all classes at once at all, it ought to affect all classes at once and in the same proportion."

The presence here of the principals in the coming fight increases the prevailing interest. Paddy Ryan has for some time been in training at Fairchild's, five miles out the Perrysville road and has bees actively preparing for to-morrow's event. Ryan is 28 years of age and six foot one inch in height, weight 160 pounds. He has never fought in the prize ring. His trainer is Johnny Roach. Joe Goss, who has been in training at Port Hamilton, N. Y., reached this city this morning from the East, via Clucinnati Express on the Pennsylvania railroad, at 8:11. He was accompanied by his trainer and by Billy Tracey, his backer. The men attracted a good deal of attention. Goss was neatly dressed in dark clothes. He is an Englishman by birth, is forty-four years old, and stands five feet eight inches in height and his fighting weight is placed at 150 pounds. He entered the prize ring in 1859, and has taken part in many famous battles. It is claimed that he has deteriorated in condition and is scarcely a match for Byan. After Goss had walked the length of the Union Depot he was hurried into a carriage that stood in walting and was driven out of the eager crowd. A continuance of the present delightful weather will tend to increase the assured big attendance at this milli.

GOSSIP ABOUT GEORGE ELIOT.

LONDON, May 31.—The report that George Eliot had been married under the name of Lewes originated in the Times having published it so among its "Marriages"—i.e. "May 6, at St. George's Church, Hanover Square, John Walker Cross, of Weybridge, to Marian Evans Lewes, of the Priory, North Bank, Regent's Park."

This notice was probably forwarded to the Times by some friend who did not realize that for George Eliot to have been married in the name of Lewes would have been illegal. The widow of Lewes (see Jervis) is illving in Kensington, London.

George Eliot was accompanied to the reduct by Charles Lewes, eddestion of G. H. Lewes, who gave her away. Mr. Cross was attended by his two sisters—very six tractive young ladies. There were no bridesmaids or groomsmen.

George Eliot wore on the occasion a black satin dress, cream-colored trimmings, and bonnet the same. The party adjourned to breakfast at the Langham Hotel. George Eliot and her husband started for Paris the same evening.

It had been given out by the friends of Bl line that if Senator Cameron ahould persist in ruling for the unit rule, the National Committee would not hesitate to remove him from the Chairmanship. A caucus was held during the day, and a course of action marked out having that result for ultimate action. On the part of some of the members, especially the supporters of Sherman and Wm. E. Chandler, to the deposition of Cameron and some others, the way towards an anti-Grant organization of the Convention was hoped for.

At a meeting of the National Committee this evening the following resolutions were offered by Mr. Chandler:

Resolved, That this Committee approves and rainfes the call for the approaching Republican National Convention, which was issued by its Chairman and Secretary, and which invites two delegates at large from each State and Territory, and two from the District, four delegates at large from each State and Territory, and two from the District of Columbia to the passengers lost nearly all their eff-sate way to four the District of Columbia to the passengers and the passengers cannot be given, but it is thought that none were offered by the story of the Dastrict, four delegates at large from each State and Territory, and two from the District of Columbia to the passengers and the content of the passengers lost nearly all their eff-sate way to the state of the passengers cannot be given, but it is thought that none were offered by for one the District of Columbia to the passengers lost nearly all their eff-sate way the passengers lost nearly a Martin's Landing, about 30 miles above Sail-Both Men In Prime Condition and Alton, at two o'clock this morning.
